Henry P. David Grants for Research and International Travel in Human Reproductive Behavior and Population Studies

- APF's Henry David Fund supports work in the behavioral aspects of human reproductive behavior or an area related to population concerns. The fund was established to support young psychologists with a demonstrated interest in the behavioral aspects of human reproductive behavior or an area related to population concerns. The fund sponsors two grants annually: The Research Grant provides support for ongoing research in behavioral aspects of population studies or human reproductive behavior. The Travel Grant provides support travel related to research on human reproductive behavior and population studies or attendance at an international or regional congress. Applicants must be graduate students conducting dissertation research or early career researchers with not more than 10 years postgraduate experience. Applicants must have a demonstrated interest in human reproductive behavior or related population concerns. The grants are open to applicants in all relevant disciplines who have a demonstrated psychological approach to their work, with preference given to psychologists. Application Due Date: February 1, 2018.
